Notes on Editors

Lorenzo De Sio is an Assistant Professor at LUISS Guido Carli—Rome where he teaches "Methods of social research" (in English) and "Public opinion and political behaviour" (in Italian). He is the coordinator of the CISE (Italian Centre for Electoral Studies). Formerly a Jean Monnet Fellow at the European University Institute; a Visiting Research Fellow at the University of California, Irvine; and a Campbell National Fellow at Stanford University, he is a member of the Scientific Council of the ITANES (Italian National Election Studies), and he takes part to the "True European Voter" and "EUandI" international research projects. Before LUISS, he has taught at the universities of Florence and Siena. His current research interests revolve around spatial and nonspatial models of voting behaviour and party competition, with regard to the role of issues. Among his publications are articles appearing on Comparative Political Studies, West European Politics, South European Society and Politics, as well as on all the main relevant Italian scientific journals. He is the author of Elettori in movimento (Polistampa, 2008) and Competizione e spazio politico (Il Mulino, 2011), the editor of La politica cambia, i valori restano? Una ricerca sulla cultura politica dei cittadini toscani (Firenze University Press, 2011), the coeditor of Terremoto elettorale. Le elezioni politiche del 2013 (Il Mulino, 2014), of The Italian general election of 2013: A dangerous stalemate? (CISE, 2013), and of the first four volumes in Italian of the Dossier CISE series.

Vincenzo Emanuele has received his PhD in Political Science at Scuola Normale Superiore (formerly SUM) of Florence defending a thesis on the process of vote nationalisation in Western Europe and its determinants. Previously, he has graduated in Political Science at the University of Florence and has been subject expert in Italian Political System at LUISS Guido Carli in Rome. Today, he teaches Italian Political System at Middlebury College (Florence), and he is a member of CISE (Italian Center for Electoral Studies). He has published articles on Meridiana - Rivista di Storia e Scienze Sociali and on Quaderni dell'Osservatorio Elettorale. He is also the coauthor of book chapters in Terremoto elettorale (Il Mulino, 2014), Il PD secondo Matteo (BUP, forthcoming), Perdere vincendo (Franco Angeli, 2013), and Le primarie da vicino (Epoké, 2013). He has coedited (with Lorenzo De Sio) the Dossier CISE 3 (Un anno di elezioni verso le Politiche 2013, CISE, 2013), the Dossier CISE 6 (Le Elezioni Europee 2014, CISE, 2014), and (with Lorenzo De Sio, Nicola Maggini, and Aldo Paparo) the e-book The Italian General Election of 2013. A dangerous stalemate? (CISE, 2013). He is author of several research notes published in the Dossier CISE series.

Nicola Maggini is a Research Fellow at the University of Florence and a member of the CISE (Italian Center for Electoral Studies). He has graduated in Political Science at the University of Florence, and in 2012, he received his PhD cum laude in Political Science at the Istituto Italiano di Scienze Umane (SUM). He has been a Teaching Assistant at LUISS Guido Carli in Rome, and today, he teaches Italian Political System at Middlebury College (Florence). He published articles on Studia Politica-Romanian Political Science Review, Italian Politics & Society, Czech Journal of Political Science, Società Mutamento Politica-Rivista Italiana di Sociologia, Quaderni dell'Osservatorio Elettorale, and Quaderni del Circolo Rosselli. He is also the coauthor of book chapters in Voto amaro (Il Mulino, 2013) and Terremoto elettorale (Il Mulino, 2014). He has coedited (with Lorenzo De Sio) the Dossier CISE 2 (Crisi e Rimobilitazione, CISE, 2013) and (with Lorenzo De Sio, Vincenzo Emanuele, and Aldo Paparo) the e-book The Italian General Election of 2013. A dangerous stalemate? (CISE, 2013). Furthermore, he is the author of several research notes published in the Dossier CISE series.